DO RIGHT.

We first hatched this restaurant's off-the-wall idea back in 2014. We would take the unused parts from Federal Donuts chickens and repurpose into soup, which would become the backbone (pun intended) of Rooster's restaurant menu. The best part: 100% of Rooster Soup's profit would go towards funding the mission of our partner, Broad Street Hospitality Collaborative.

Broad Street is an amazing place, where Philadelphia's most vulnerable citizens receive food, vital social services and the kind of radical hospitality that inspired this idea for a restaurant in the first place.

Thanks to the support of over 1500 Kickstarter supporters, Broad Street Ministry and Federal Donuts together opened this restaurant in January of 2017, built around converting food waste into social justice.

And with your simple and generous act of eating a meal here, you are helping to provide hospitality to those who are often least likely to receive it.

Through its Hospitality Collaborative, Broad Street Ministry served more than 72,000 meals in 2017. But, it is NOT a soup kitchen. Guests are seated by a host and eat a three-course meal served by a volunteer waitstaff and prepared by a professional chef. It's the same hospitality we aim for here.

BSM is the mailing address for more than 3,000 people, enabling them to be eligible to get an ID, housing, employment and benefits. There is a clothing closet, personal care packages, medical care, legal services, benefits and housing assistance. The list goes on and on.

At the end of the day, all of these essential services cost money.
And that's where you come in.

What if you could help someone who really needed it, just by eating lunch?

Good news: you're doing it right now.

Hospitality is fundamental. Pass it on.

EAT WELL. DO RIGHT.

100% of our profits go to support vulnerable
Philadelphians through Broad Street
Hospitality Collaborative
